...The only thing Ronnie ate at the senior picnic was egg salad.

"VARIETY IS SENIOR BIOLOGY SPICE OF LIFE"

by Debbie Dehn

Last February, senior biology students, accompanied by Mr. Lese and Mr. Argiro visited the Central Medical Pavillion in downtown Pittsburgh. The tour was conducted by the medical director at the Pavillion, Dr. Bonessi. The facility has very recently been opened and is furnished with the latest equipment. The Pavillion is designed to provide the utmost in comfort and service. Another trip is planned for this spring to include the students who did not participate in February.

As for the show itself, it contained everything an audience could wish for. There were beautiful solo numbers, several fifty's renditions, (Hot Sox, Leader of The Pack), a few impersonations, (Ed Sullivan, Gomer Pyle, and Walter Brennan,) and lots of great commercials. What student could keep a stray hand from covering those facial blemishes when the Multi-Scrub commercial was in process? What about those great legs on the raisins? The Red-Necks gave the show that patriotic touch it so deserved. The M.C.'s all did a fine job, in spite of their handicaps (I mean you, Monica!).

In spite of the soaring temperature and the fact that the light crew became ill, (special thanks to Jack Clark) the Senior Variety Show was a real smash!

It appears the "Best is yet to come" for 2nd year biology students this semester. Research projects and papers are soon due and possibly, the highlight of the course is in progress at the present time - dissections. The students have finished work on the shark and the fetal pig and will soon complete work on the cat. Generally, no more than two students work on an animal together. As a result students receive quite a bit of "first hand" experience. This could actually be valuable and of unusual interest to students planning a career in veterinary medicine or a scientifically oriented field. To many though, it is simply an indescribable experience they may never go through again.
